The culture belongs to everyone

In the old story, Anansi the spider won all the world's stories from the Sky God and gave them to everyone. The Caribbean's culture is those stories, still traveling.

Our music plays in every city. Our carnivals fill the streets of Brooklyn, London, Toronto and Miami. Our families live on every continent. The world knows the Caribbean.

But the Caribbean has never had one thing that belongs to all of it. Dozens of islands, many currencies, many languages. No shared asset that a Grenadian in Brooklyn, a Trinidadian in Toronto, a visitor who returns every August and a kid in Kingston can all hold together.

CaribCoin is that asset.

What CaribCoin is

CARIB is one open token for the whole Caribbean and everyone connected to it. It lives on Sui and works with existing wallets. Anyone, anywhere, can hold it.

It is not a national currency. It is not a government project. It does not replace the EC dollar or any other currency. It is a shared cultural asset that belongs to the people who choose it.

What we believe

- Culture first. Utility follows. People join because they belong. Uses grow because people are already here.
- One token. Every island. Never a token per island. Each new place makes the same token more useful.
- Participation, not permission. No Caribbean ancestry required. No one's approval required.
- Fair by design. Most CARIB goes to the community, not insiders.
- Built in the open. We say what is live and what is planned. We never blur the two.
- Value from use, not promises. We will never promise price, yield or returns.

How it grows

1. Culture. Build the community with creators, artists, carnival and diaspora. It starts at Spicemas, Grenada, August 2027.
2. Token. A fair launch on Sui, with published controls, verified supply and public treasury signers.
3. Utility. Give CARIB reasons to be used: rewards for stays and purchases, discounts with participating businesses, event and fete access, creator drops, and benefits across Anansi products.
4. Network. Every island. Every diaspora city. Independent apps built by others.

Fair allocation

Fixed supply: 10,000,000,000 CARIB, 9 decimals.

Allocation	Share	CARIB	Rules
Community and culture rewards	50%	5.0B	Earned through participation; never sold; at most 10% of this pool released per year against a published annual budget.
Public distribution	15%	1.5B	At launch, same terms for everyone; no discounts, no private rounds; method (free claim or open sale) decided with legal counsel.
Liquidity	5%	0.5B	Paired with real USDC; LP tokens locked and the lock published.
Treasury	15%	1.5B	Public multisig with named signers; every spend published; at most 20% of this pool per year.
Team and contributors	10%	1.0B	1-year cliff, 4-year vesting, enforced by an on-chain vesting contract.
Creators and cultural partners	5%	0.5B	Milestone-based and publicly disclosed.

- No early-backer or private discounted round; any outside capital comes from the treasury on public terms.
- Launch circulation is at most 20%; no insider unlock at launch.

Guardrails

- All CARIB minted at genesis, then mint authority permanently removed.
- Treasury, vesting and LP-lock addresses published.
- Any allocation change announced before it takes effect.

Roadmap

- Oct—Dec 2026: charter, community channels, legal review.
- Jan—Mar 2027: creator and mas-band partners, testnet contracts, audit booked.
- Apr—Jun 2027: audit complete, mainnet deployment and verification record, liquidity plan.
- July 2027: token live; public distribution opens.
- Spicemas, Grenada (second week of August 2027): first culture moment, with community rewards, fete perks and creator drops.

The token launches before carnival, not at it.

The ambition

We want CARIB to be the most widely held and used token in the Caribbean: the one asset every island recognizes, and the easiest way for the world to belong to the region.

That only happens if people use it. We will measure ourselves by that.

Live global. Belong local.
One World. One Caribbean. One CaribCoin.

Status and risk

In development. No token sale or mainnet address has been announced. CaribCoin is developed by Anansi Technology LLC, a Florida company. It has no government affiliation and implies no endorsement by any person, business or institution unless a published agreement says so.

CARIB can lose some or all of its value. Liquidity may be limited. Wallet mistakes, compromised accounts and software failures can cause permanent loss. Holding CARIB grants no equity, dividends, yield or voting rights in Anansi. Availability depends on your wallet, market and jurisdiction. Official addresses will be published at https://caribcoin.org before any transaction is invited; treat any other address as fraudulent.
